Government Removes Food From Idle Ships

LITTLE HOPE OF SETTLEMENT OF STRIKE IS SEEN

More Workers Scheduled To Join Walkout; Stocks Of Perishables Saved

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7—The government began removing vast stores of perishable foods from its idled merchant ships today as the nationwide shipping strike dragged on with no sign of a settlement.

The maritime commission won agreement from the striking unions to allow unloading of many of the food-laden vessels tied up by the walkout.

In Baltimore alone, some $300,000 worth of meat and fresh vegetables aboard 28 ships were saved from possible spoilage when the unions permitted longshoremen to work the vessels. Some of the food will be sold, the rest stored in warehouses until the strike ends.

The maritime commission said similar arrangements had been made for unloading government vessels in New York.

New York tugboatmen were scheduled to join the work stoppage at 4 p. m. (EDT) but agreed to continue operating food barges and railroad flats.

The strike made itself felt throughout the country and cut off supply lines to occupation forces overseas as well.

The maritime commission said 705 ships were immobilized in east coast ports, almost 200 on the west coast and an undetermined number in gulf ports. One of the striking unions claimed that 2,534 ships were tied up, including smaller vessels not counted by the commission.

The Association of American Railroads reported that from 15,000 to 20,000 loaded freight cars had been tied up in various ports by the strike.

Government hopes for settling the walkout rested almost completely in scheduled conferences in San Francisco today between Assistant Secretary of Labor Phillip Hannah and Harry Lundeberg, president of the Sailors Union of the Pacific (AFL).

Secretary of Labor Lewis B. Schwellenbach instructed Hannah to ask Lundeberg to call off the strike or come here to arrange a settlement.

Before Hannah left for the west coast, however, Lundeberg said his mission would be fruitless. He said the only solution would be for the wage stabilization board to reverse its adverse wage decision against the SUP and the Seafarers International Union, also AFL.

The strike was called only by the SUP and the SIU but was supposed to be settled by the two unions.

Meat Supplies Shrink As OPA Lists Prices

With meat stocks diminishing rapidly in Circleville's retail establishments Old Mother Hubbard took a squat at her cupboard, Saturday, and decided that maybe becoming a vegetarian won't be so bad after all.

Discussions of the restoration of OPA ceiling prices on meat, which will become effective at 1 minute after midnight Monday were frequent as groups of feminine shoppers gathered in stores and on downtown sidewalks.

"What good will ceiling prices be—if there isn't any meat?" one woman asked her fellow-shoppers.

The Daily Herald received an official notification, Saturday, from the OPA district office, Cincinnati, announcing that the new retail ceiling prices on meat become effective at 12:01 a. m. Tuesday, stating that posters have been mailed to all retail stores in the Cincinnati district which embraces Circleville and Pickaway county, and stating that the posters must be so displayed that they may be readily scanned by customers.

The notifications said that the price increases are "confined for the most part to choice cuts from carcasses carrying the government's top grading," and are "ap-

Police said the theft occurred sometime Friday night and that the property was removed from the sidewalk in front of the store.

19 INDICTMENTS ARE RETURNED BY GRAND JURY

Two Of Safe Robbers Among Those Indicted; Eight Cases Ignored

Two of the three men who stole a 500-pound safe from the general store of James D. Butts, at the village of Fox, five miles northwest of Circleville, were in jail and under indictment for burglary, Saturday, 48 hours after the crime was committed.

The two, Walter Leo Roberts, 29, and Wilbur Jeffords, 37, both of Portsmouth, are among 19 persons indicted by the Pickaway county grand jury late Friday afternoon following a two-day session. The 15 grand jurors reviewed the evidence in 27 criminal cases, examined 40 witnesses under direction of County Prosecutor Kenneth Robbins, ignored 8 cases, and returned 15 open and 4 secret indictments.

The third member of the bandit trio that burglarized the Butts store at 3 a. m. Thursday was named in one of the secret indictments and he was being hunted Saturday throughout central Ohio. Roberts was arrested two hours after the burglary and Sheriff Charles Radcliff said he admitted his part in the robbery. Jeffords was taken into custody at 9:30 p. m. Wednesday walking on State Route 104 near the Darby Creek bridge. He gave his name as Wilbur Smith but the Chillicothe address the prisoner offered, the sheriff said, proved false.

Others named in the open indictments are:

JUDGE SUSTAINS CITY DEMURRER IN WATER CASE

City of Circleville won another legal battle in the conflict with the Ohio Water Service Company, Saturday, when Attorney Joseph W. Adkins, counsel for the municipality, received from Common Pleas Judge Frank M. Acton, Lancaster, a letter sustaining the city's demurral to the company's injunction suit in which the water company sought to prevent the taking over of the water properties by the municipality.

Judge Acton presided at a hearing of the injunction suit a few weeks ago in Pickaway county common pleas court and at that time took the case under advisement.

Attorney Adkins said that Judge Acton's letter, overruling the water company's three causes of action in the injunction application, authorizes Attorney Adkins to prepare an entry, submit it for the signatures of the company's counsel, and then return it to Judge Acton for his signature and for filing in the office of Clerk of Courts Arthur Wilder.

CIO IRKED AT TRUMAN FOR 'FAVORING' AFL

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7—The Truman administration found itself in the CIO doghouse today for selecting the AFL to represent U. S. labor at the coming international labor conference.

Informed quarters predicted the politically-potent CIO would reply by rejecting an invitation to participate in the conference in any way. It starts Sept. 19 at Montreal.

President Truman, it was learned, made the decision in favor of the AFL. In so doing, overruled a proposal by Secretary of Labor Lewis B. Schwellenbach to rotate CIO representation between the CIO and AFL.

The choice pulled the administration off a hot spot with the AFL and was hailed by AFL President William Green as "just." CIO leaders were plainly angry but there was no immediate comment from CIO President Philip Murray.

Murray spoke out sharply against the President when Mr. Truman asked congress for fact-finding labor legislation. He may reply in a similar vein when the President invites him to nominate a CIO adviser to the AFL delegation.

CIO sources said the invitation would probably be refused and

NEW COMMANDER TO STREAMLINE VFW'S SET UP

BOSTON, Sept. 7—Louis E. Starr of Portland, Ore., newly-elected national commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, said today his primary objective was to reorganize the VFW so that it would be "as streamlined as tomorrow's jet-propelled plane and as responsive and flexible as a gyroscope."

The 48-year-old attorney and World War I infantry sergeant said his first step toward streamlining the VFW to meet the demands of modern big business would be to appoint a national policy committee.

Purpose of this committee, he said, would be "to indicate a goal, to outline our objectives, to brief up in strategy for attaining them and to recommend the necessary working tools."

Government Given Military Powers To Make Arrests, Maintain Order

PLANE SAID SHOT AT Greeks On Reconnaissance Mission Reported Over Yugoslavia Territory

Athens, Sept. 7—The Greek government today clamped the whole country under martial law, reimposing the drastic provisions of "extraordinary law" which had been relaxed for last Sunday's referendum.

A Greek spokesman in London said Premier Constantin Tsaldaris had been consulted regarding the move. He said that martial law had been imposed only in northern Greece. However, the Athens spokesman said the entire country was affected.

The government decree suspends normal provisions of Greek law and enables the government to proceed under military powers to make arrests and maintain order.

The decree issued by the cabinet provides for special military courts to try alleged "bandits." Prior to the plebiscite it had been applied only to northern and central Greece.

Greece had only been out from under the drastic law for nine days. It was lifted two days before the referendum for the benefit of public opinion at home and abroad.

The law authorizes police to arrest anyone suspected of planning to do anything which might be regarded as "dangerous to public order" in the opinion of the police officer. Suspects are tried immediately by military courts and sentenced to exile on small islands, jailed or otherwise punished.

The government has exhibited great apprehensions, particularly as a result of the "rocket reports" from Salonika. British military quarters have characterized the rocket reports as without foundation but the government fears have not been allayed.

The official explanation of the edict was that what the government calls "Communist bandit activity" is increasing.

The government asserted that 100 Communists had attacked the police station at the village of Leonarion, near Larissa. The police fled to the hills, the announcement said, and "bandits" looted the town. There were no casualties, the government said.

Reflecting the widespread apprehension in Greece, opposition leaders said all Greeks must be united in defense of their country against their neighbors.

Those taking this stand included Themistocles Sofoulis, leader of the Liberal party, George Papandreou, national Socialist Democrat party, Sophocles Venizelos, head of the right-wing branch of the Liberal party, Panayiotis Kanelopoulos, National Union party, John Sofianopoulos, leader of the Democratic Union party.

Sofianopoulos said unity is necessary but "the present situation is due entirely to the one-sided policy of the present government." The leftist EAM coalition is

LIQUOR SALE TO BE BANNED HERE DURING FAIR

Legal sale of liquors and 6 per cent beer in Circleville will be halted during the four-day Pickaway County Junior Fair which will be held beginning next Wednesday.

According to information obtained Saturday, however, some establishments will continue to exert every effort to see their meat remains in legitimate trade channels.

Police Chief William F. McCrady declined to discuss the situation other than to say that an official statement would be forthcoming Monday relative to the sale of intoxicants.

It was learned that spokesmen for the Circleville chapter of the WCTU recently called on Mayor Ben H. Gordon and Chief McCrady and that the request was made that the old 58-year-old state law which recently has halted liquor sales during County Fairs in various sections of Ohio be enforced during the Pickaway County Fair and also during the 40th annual Pumpkin Show to be held Oct. 16-19.

Police said the theft occurred sometime Friday night and that the property was removed from the sidewalk in front of the store.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7—An agricultural department official estimated today the annual food bill of an average family of three would be about $70 less under the new OPA meat ceilings than under the uncontrolled prices of recent weeks.

issuing a statement tonight, taking a position similar to Sofianopoulos but denouncing the government in stronger terms.

The decision was taken in a special meeting lasting two and a half hours. Officially it resulted from increased Communist activity in the country. Increased official concern over the possibility of an attack from the north contributed to the decision.

Acting Premier Stylianos Gonatas told the United Press after the cabinet session that the downing of a Greek airforce spitfire over Yugoslavia yesterday was "the official expression of what we had seen in advance—that Yugoslavs have claims against our country."

Gonatas said the spitfire was armed. He said the armament was "for defense against Communist bands in the north." The pilot, he said, was on a reconnaissance mission over northern Greece and accidentally entered Yugoslav territory.

The maid, dark complexioned, five feet five inches tall and weighing about 145 pounds, was hired by Tobias after she hitch-hiked a ride from him at a stop sign.

The parents were away from home until 8 p. m. Thursday night. When they returned they found both the maid and Madeline gone.

Police and sheriff's deputies searched highways between Kansas City and St. Louis. Sheriff J. A. Purdome and a special deputy flew to St. Louis to check bus and truck terminals.

Mrs. Tobias said the maid apparently had been devoted to Madeline and had remarked that she wished she had a child of her own.

CHICAGO, Sept. 7—The seriousness of the coming meat famine was emphasized today by the disclosure that Paul Porter, OPA administrator, flew here from Washington for a secret conference with meat packers.

The secret meeting was held yesterday in a penthouse atop the Morrison hotel. Porter reportedly asked packers for cooperation in the OPA program. He was said to have asked them to exert every effort to get meat to the nation's dinner tables.

Meanwhile, slaughter house employees were being laid off by the thousands at packing plants across the nation. The number of cattle and hogs shipped to market had dropped to the lowest in years.

Spokesmen for the meat industry said consumers would find little meat at their neighborhood butcher shops beginning next week. Spokesmen for the National Retail Meat Dealers' association feared the return of the black market on an even larger scale.

Porter's flight here reportedly was arranged by local OPA officials. He returned to Washington after the two-hour conference. The local OPA declined to comment, but it was reported that nothing definite developed at the session.

A spokesman for the American Meat Institute said that Porter "explained the OPA's position and we explained ours." Porter reportedly asked the packers not to disrupt the OPA program by refusing to buy and slaughter livestock or by withholding meat from the market.

The average farmer uses 2,000 feet of lumber each year.

LITTLE HOPE OF SETTLEMENT OF STRIKE IS SEEN

ported by all CIO as well as all AFL maritime unions.

The board disapproved wage increases that were $5 and $10 a month more for the AFL seamen than those approved last June for CIO workers. Faced with the strike, the board agreed to reopen the case with public hearings here next Tuesday.

The San Francisco AFL central labor council adopted a resolution last night asking AFL Chief William Green to withdraw the AFL member from the wage stabilization board. Lundeberg said he had talked by telephone with Green who agreed that "labor has no say whatsoever on the board."

Lundeberg also said the SUP wanted no support from the CIO seamen and predicted trouble on the water front "if the Communist-CIO maritime unions try to take over the strike."

The AFL appeared hopeful that the outcome of the strike would be a blow-blow to the rival CIO.

AFL sources hinted that their strategy is to force a change in government wage policy as significant as that gained by the CIO United Steelworkers last Winter. They feel this is necessary to offset the prestige claimed by the CIO as leader in the fight to gain postwar wage increases.

RED ACTIVITY IS BLAMED FOR DRASTIC STEP

issuing a statement tonight, taking a position similar to Sofianopoulos but denouncing the government in stronger terms.

The decision was taken in a special meeting lasting two and a half hours. Officially it resulted from increased Communist activity in the country. Increased official concern over the possibility of an attack from the north contributed to the decision.

Acting Premier Stylianos Gonatas told the United Press after the cabinet session that the downing of a Greek airforce spitfire over Yugoslavia yesterday was "the official expression of what we had seen in advance—that Yugoslavs have claims against our country."

Gonatas said the spitfire was armed. He said the armament was "for defense against Communist bands in the north." The pilot, he said, was on a reconnaissance mission over northern Greece and accidentally entered Yugoslav territory.

(An Exchange Telegraph Athens dispatch reported that an UNRRA plane spraying antimalaria DDT in the Peloponnesus areas of southern Greece was forced down by rifle shots fired by two shepherds. The pilot was slightly wounded. The shepherds, when arrested, said they were firing for amusement.)

(An official announcement in Belgrade said the plane had been on a military reconnaissance mission. It said the pilot had been interned "until further steps are taken.")

Lt. Charles Welch, head of the homicide division, said his information indicated that the maid may have been a patient in a mental institution.

"But we've had so many conflicting reports about the maid that we hardly know what to believe," he said.

The maid, dark complexioned, five feet five inches tall and weighing about 145 pounds was hired by Tobias after she hitch-hiked a ride from him at a stop sign.

The parents were away from home until 8 p. m. Thursday night. When they returned they found both the maid and Madeline gone.

Police and sheriff's deputies searched highways between Kansas City and St. Louis. Sheriff J. A. Purdon and a special deputy flew to St. Louis to check bus and truck terminals.

Mrs. Tobias said the maid apparently had been devoted to Madeline and had remarked that she wished she had a child of her own.

The parents said she was a "happy-go-lucky sort of person" who said she liked to roam about the country.

CEILINGS MAY CUT EXPENSES

panied to Chicago by George Manchash, chief of the 2,500 enforcement agents assembled by OPA to fight the black market.

OPA's black market worries were aggravated by the fact that meat supplies are due to slump in the next two months. The seasonal drop will be intensified this year because huge numbers of cattle were rushed to market ahead of time while prices were uncontrolled.

If the rate of marketing falls too low, Secretary of Agriculture Clinton P. Anderson has authority under the new price control law to boost livestock ceilings above the present $20.25 per hundred for cattle and $16.25 for hogs, Chicago basis.

The new retail meat ceilings average 3.75 cents a pound higher than the June 30 ceilings. On some cuts, such as prime rib roast, sirloin steak, loin lamb chops and Canadian bacon the increase is 11 to 16 cent above June 30.

Other cuts of meat were not increased at all. These included Grade B and C beef, AA short ribs, AA beef stew meat, veal cuts, sausage, hamburger, ham, pork shoulders, pig knuckles and feet, lamb neck bones and lamb and mutton kidneys.

After an immigration board of inquiry yesterday refused them legal entrance as citizens, members of the hardy band, which included a five-year-old girl, today considered Australia or Mexico.

There remained, however, one ray of hope for the group of refugees who sailed weary, and with their supplies almost gone, into Miami two weeks ago.

Volunteer Attorneys for the group said they would make an appeal on the decision, to the Philadelphia board of immigration and appeals.

Today's ruling, which followed a week of questioning, was understood to be a matter of form, inasmuch as the nation's yearly quota of 116 Estonians had been exhausted.

boating, camping and picnicking can now be enjoyed at virtually all of the lakes.

However, the Conservancy board has chosen Seneca Lake near Seneca Falls, (Noble County) Ohio; Atwood Lake near Carrollton, (Carroll County) Ohio; and Pleasant Hill Lake near Loudonville, (Richland County) Ohio; for major development. Here shelter houses, playfields, picnic tables, ovens, wells, parking areas, bathing beaches and cottages will be constructed.

Not only have all ten lakes been fishing sport with fish which are furnishing sport for thousands of visitors.

The lakes themselves cover a total of 25 square miles and have a shoreline of 365 miles. They are picturesque, irregular in shape, and reach up in long bays into the valleys between the hills.

To insure their use by the general public, the entire shoreline is owned or under control of the Conservancy District.

In addition to the three lakes mentioned above, the construction of this great lake system involved more than the building of huge dams. Two villages were relocated, railroads moved, power transmission, telegram, telephone, oil and gas lines relocated, highways changed and bridges built, protective levees constructed and cemeteries moved.

There are seven other lakes in addition to the three mentioned above. They are: Charles Mills between Ashland and Mansfield (Richland County), Beach City (Tuscarawas County), Leesville near Leesville (Carroll County), Tappan northwest of Cadiz (Harrison County), Clendenin southwest of Cadiz (Harrison County), Piedmont near Freeport (Belmont County), and Will Creek southeast of Coshocton (Coshocton County).

When plans now under way are fully developed Ohioans will have recreational and sporting facilities said to be unparalleled in this country.

MEETING HATE

ONE of Europe's many problems is the universal hatred of Germany. Willis D. Weatherhead, a member of the American Friends' Service Committee, recently returned from Europe, said in Philadelphia that when he reminded Poles or Frenchmen that Germany was more destroyed than their countries, they refused to believe him. Or they expressed regret that the Reich had not suffered more, that more Germans had not been killed.

Germany, painfully damaged, is unable to see, beyond the ashes of its ruins, this universal agony it has caused. Most Germans, the Quaker says, are indifferent, self-centered and disrespectful of other nationalities. Feeding the Germans, he thinks, is a step in the right direction, because it is easier for a well-fed man to see his neighbors' troubles. He advocates work camps in Poland, France and Germany, to be manned by citizens from each country and by Americans, in order to restore destroyed areas. This, he believes, might develop repentance on the part of Germans, and mutual concern all around.

Such a reconciliation plan is courageous. It will sound too idealistic to many people aware of deep-seated antagonism and widespread bitterness in Europe. However the idea is worth attention. If Europe ever is to be secure from war, both this hatred for Germany and the present German attitude must be recognized and dealt with in some way.

STAUNCH LAW

ATTORNEY General Tom Clark's department is conducting 170 major trust investigations. These are not meant as attacks on free enterprise, as perhaps the companies investigated might like to suggest, but as supports of independent businesses against the encroachments of monopolies. They are conducted not in obedience to recently enacted laws, but to that veteran piece of legislation, the Sherman Anti-Trust Act of 1890.

Few laws of the first magnitude have stood up so long or so well. Though sometimes neglected by enforcing officials, the Sherman Act stands out an unblunted weapon. Its success is due to its simplicity. With Jack Gaver Along Broadway

NEW YORK, Sept. 7 — Phil Silvers, a balding ex-burlesque comic wearing shell-rimmed glasses, quieted the tumult that climaxed his sensational debut at the Copacabana night club.

"I'm a pretty sentimental guy," he said, haltingly. "But I don't use it much. Only when it really comes from the bottom of my heart."

He paused, then continued in a hoarse voice:

"I'd like to take a little bow for rags."

He ducked his head before the microphone and rushed off the floor to the dressing room, choked with emotion.

And that is how Rags Ragland, the sober-faced funny-man who went from the grind of burlesque to featured billing in the movies, played the Copacabana.

At a ringside table, Frank Sinatra brushed his hand across his eyes. Gigantic Toots Shor gave Franks' shoulder a comforting pat with a ham-like hand, and blinked a couple of times. They were Rags' closets pals.

Ragland, who got the good breaks only in recent years, died in Hollywood Aug. 20. He was to have opened at the Copacabana as Silvers' assistant.

Instead, for the midnight show, Silvers had one of the highest priced stooges on record—who didn't draw a dime—Frank Sinatra. The crooner had played hookey, as he called it, from his lot in Hollywood to fly here just for that appearance. He wanted to help Phil get off to a good start. And he felt that Rags would have liked it.

The result was one of those occasions that will go down in Broadway's night life history. The sentiment helped, of course, but that came only at the end, after the show was over. Silvers gave one of the greatest performances ever seen on a night club floor, and the night before he had quaked at the thought of having to follow the record-breaking engagement of Peter Lind Hayes.

The professional looking comic had sold himself solidly to the overflow crowd—that indefinite group known as "everybody" was there—before Sinatra wandered onto the floor to become a guinea pig for Silvers' vocal lesson routine and other bits. After more solo work by Silvers, Frank and Julie Wilson, Copacabana vocalists, joined him for a musical burlesque tour of the night spots. Then Phil and Frank wound up the evening with a take-off on one of those old-time vaudeville teams—two harmonizing young men in sailor straw hats and white gloves.

One thing that the performance demonstrated besides the ability of Silvers was the progress Sinatra has made as an entertainer. Something, probably the movies, has made him much more than a singer. He's getting to be an all-round performer.

Rags would have liked that. He thought a lot of the kid.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7—The Russo-Swedish trade deal bears underlying symptoms of a local Swedish election matter. A few rikstag members are being re-elected Sept. 15, and the dominant labor group (unlike AFL or the British labor government), has not yet awakened to the import of appeasing dictatorships but is trying to get the local Communist vote. Swedish production is overcrowded with orders. The deal has not gone through. The leftist Swedish politicos have merely gone to Moscow to try to get the Russians to accept $278,000,000 in credits (and flying rockets from the Russian zones in Germany have suddenly stopped flying over Swedish air). The Swedes may or may not have enough goods to fulfill the terms of the agreement if made. In itself the proposal leans toward the minor vagaries of current international politics.

But what the Swedes and Russians are trying to make out of it in a propaganda way, is another matter, and a rather critical one. When the United States told them a world trade conference was contemplated and we hoped nothing would be done to prevent bilateral building-up of world trade in the postwar era, Sweden quietly snubbed us and Russia told us to go mind our own business which, she said, included bilateral trade agreements on our part.

unquestionably we would mind our own business anyway, world trade being part of our business, so the advice was gratuitous. But the claim that we are making bilateral trade agreements shows the extent to which Russia is deceiving her own people in their censored isolationism—and presumably also self-deceiving her own government, which has been described by a good reporter as being made up of "rather commonplace men."

Yes, we make bilateral trade agreements. But the truth is they contain a "most favored nation clause". Under this provision any other nation which makes the same deal, gets the same agreement. Say we allow Russia certain tariff reduction is passed automatically on to other nations who make an agreement with us. Thus, while the particular agreement may be bilateral, the nature of it is multilateral. While technically we make it for one, actually we make it for all. I think we have such a treaty with Sweden and as for the export-import bank, it makes bilateral loans but not in an exclusive manner, furnishing its credit rather freely to all.

That is why we expressed concern at the reported exclusive nature of the Swedish agreement and expressed hope nothing would be done to block a world trade conference. (We actually fear a Russian trade bloc.) These things are well known in international dealings. For Russia and Sweden to ignore them is to threaten to set up an exclusive and antagonistic world trade program.

To propagandize the matter as Russia has done is on all fours with the announcement of Generalissimo Stalin on V-J day that "the Soviet people and their armed forces won a victory over Japan", not mentioning the United States or anyone else although Russia played a minor and quite late (overdue?) part in that victory which was almost entirely ours. "Nervous Indigestion" From Many Causes, Mostly Emotional

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

EVERY doctor is familiar with the patient who complains of indigestion and yet whose digestive organs are sound.

The most careful study and even X-rays of stomach, bowel and gallbladder, fail to reveal any abnormal condition, yet these patients continue to experience all the symptoms of indigestion, discomfort in the abdomen, belching, excessive gas formation and poor appetite.

Doctors know that the distress is functional. For one reason or another, the various organs are not working properly, but the trouble is not due to anything which the physician can cure by giving medicine or the surgeon correct by an operation.

Doctor Has Trouble

This makes the doctor's task more difficult but nonetheless these people must be helped, for their sufferings are very real. The first step in any real treatment is to find the underlying causes for the disturbance.

According to Dr. Walter C. Alvarez of the Mayo Clinic, there may be many and various. For example, one woman's nervous indigestion may be due to the fact that she is worn out with family cares. Another may have sickness to the stomach and heartburn due to smoking far too much. Another may have excessive gas formation due to heart failure, while in still another case, all the symptoms may be due to constipation. Each of these persons needs a different type of treatment.

Doctors know that the distress is functional. For one reason or another, the various organs are not working properly, but the trouble is not due to anything which the physician can cure by giving medicine or the surgeon correct by an operation.

Feeling of Soreness

One of the most common forms of nervous indigestion associated with a feeling of soreness in the bowel. Many of these patients from time to time pass large amounts of mucus in the stools.

Their symptoms become worse when they have any kind of emotional upset, or when they are coming down with a cold, or perhaps, when they take laxatives or eat too much bulky food.

Dr. Alvarez says that these people must be "taught how best to live with their trouble" because they are likely to have some disturbance on and off for years.

The doctor's assurance that no serious difficulties are likely to develop as a result of their indigestion will relieve them of a good deal of worry on one score at least. Once they realize that overwork and anything which promotes tension makes their condition worse, they can often arrange their lives so as to avoid fatigue and strain.

Many are helped by taking a daily injection of a weak salt solution into the lower bowel. Others are benefited by taking a mild sedative or quieting drug before they go to a party or have some exciting experience.

Thus, it may be seen that many cases of indigestion are due to nervous disturbances and that often they can be overcome by changes in the routine of living, so as to eliminate mental and physical strain.

Most of these persons with indigestion are nervous, hypersensitive and easily irritated. They often worry a great deal and many of them are suffering from the strain of overwork or long hours.

It might be a good time for introspection, reflection, or an effort to reach some of the enduring fundamentals and values of life.

MEETING HATE

ONE of Europe's many problems is the universal hatred of Germany. Willis D. Weatherhead, a member of the American Friends' Service Committee, recently returned from Europe, said in Philadelphia that when he reminded Poles or Frenchmen that Germany was more destroyed than their countries, they refused to believe him. Or they expressed regret that the Reich had not suffered more, that more Germans had not been killed.

Germany, painfully damaged, is unable to see, beyond the ashes of its ruins, this universal agony it has caused. Most Germans, the Quaker says, are indifferent, self-centered and disrespectful of other nationalities. Feeding the Germans, he thinks, is a step in the right direction, because it is easier for a well-fed man to see his neighbors' troubles. He advocates work camps in Poland, France and Germany, to be manned by citizens from each country and by Americans, in order to restore destroyed areas. This, he believes, might develop repentance on the part of Germans, and mutual concern all around.

Such a reconciliation plan is courageous. It will sound too idealistic to many people aware of deep-seated antagonism and widespread bitterness in Europe. However the idea is worth attention. If Europe ever is to be secure from war, both this hatred for Germany and the present German attitude must be recognized and dealt with in some way.

STAUNCH LAW

ATTORNEY General Tom Clark's department is conducting 170 major trust investigations. These are not meant as attacks on free enterprise, as perhaps the companies investigated might like to suggest, but as supports of independent businesses against the encroachments of monopolies. They are conducted not in obedience to recently enacted laws, but to that veteran piece of legislation, the Sherman Anti-Trust Act of 1890.

Few laws of the first magnitude have stood up so long or so well. Though sometimes neglected by enforcing officials, the Sherman Act stands out an unblunted weapon. Its success is due to its simplicity. By it, as the first clause states, "every contract, combination, in the form of trust or otherwise, or conspiracy, in restraint of trade or commerce among the several states or with foreign nations, is hereby declared illegal."

For a statute, this is extraordinarily clear and simple language. It is language which the wildest attacks of hostile lawyers find difficult to confuse or elude.

SYNOPSIS

Beautiful Abby Wallace was permitted few pleasures by friends by her elderly, domineering father, Norman Wallace, whose palatial home in Fairmont housed one of the finest private art collections in the country. Abby's mother had died years before, and Wallace had trained his daughter to be his hostess and unofficial secretary—just as he was training young Craig Emerson, a distant cousin who is in love with Abby, to be curator of the Wallace collection. Wallace voiced his objections to Abby attending a swimming party at the home of wealthy Madge Duncan, whom she had recently met at Bed Cross, but finally yielded when Abby agreed to let Craig accompany her. Madge's many matrimonial ventures had caused considerable gossip when she and Robert Duncan, her latest husband, migrated to Fairmont two years before. Among the guests were Harry Lambert, Madge's son by a previous marriage, who had recently been discharged from the Air Force, and Val Stanley, local beauty now famous as a model, who is week-end-ing with the Duncans. Harry took one look at Abby and knew he was in love, and later Val, watching them about to dive in the pool, knew she was a face, no longer dominated by the weight and burning color, emerged quickly, splashed toilet water on her neck and arms, and dressed. She rebraided her hair and wound it around her head, leaned forward to draw the lipstick firmly over the exact curves of her mouth.

When she returned to the others, luncheon was being served from the hamper that had been brought down from the house; sandwiches, aspics, hot coffee, iced tea, whiskey and soda; you had your choice. Barry was shaking cocktails for those who preferred them, at the bar. And Madge Duncan asked, "Dressed so soon, Abby? Aren't you going in again?"

Abby grinned. He said, "Time will tell. Remind me at the first howl."

He won, of course, although she swam very well. They reached the shallow end and stood up, and he took her arms and lifted her to the ledge. She took off her tight cap and the pins slid from her hair and it began to uncurl. Barry said, "Let it down. . . . I haven't seen a girl with long hair since—since my grandmother died. She was 76, and hers was long and thick, too, but white. And she was quite a girl at that."

Abby said, "Certainly not," and was not referring to his deceased grandmother. She looked around for the pins and felt Barry's hand on her head. He said softly, "You have a nice little skull."

He liked the feel of it, in his hands, through the masses of hair. He found the other pins and felt over her shoulders. The ends were roughened into curls. He said, "That is something."

Val said, just behind them, "Very pretty. Wasn't the name Rapunzel?"

Someone shouted, "Lunch!" and Barry rose and pulled Abby to her feet. She said, visibly embarrassed, "I'll be back in a moment," and went off toward the cabana, conscious of what she considered an absurd appearance, in the long childish plait. If she loosened them from bondage, her hair would hang like a skein of gold to her waist.

She smiled, self-consciously, at Madge Duncan and the others as she passed and murmured something unintelligible.

The cabana was empty. She went into the small cubicle where she had undressed. There was a built-in bench, a little dressing table, a mirror, and the usual assortment of oils, lotions, powder, towels.

She was shivering, and had brought no robe. She looked at the guest robe hanging from a hook on the wall and shook her head.

She took off her wet suit. She had a beautiful, fragile-boned body, very narrow through the waist, with rounded hips. She was long-legged, perfectly proportioned.

She looked at herself, almost blindly, and flushed. She had not been conscious of her body for so long. She took a towel, dried quickly, splashed toilet water on her neck and arms, and dressed. She rebraided her hair and wound it around her head and laughed.

She asked, "Are you coming in?" Barry dived. He was conscious that Val and Emerson were still standing there, some distance away, watching; that his mother was watching, too, from the lawn chair.

He came up close to Abby, and touched her smooth wet arm. He said, "Race you to the end of the pool. . . . and then let's pray for lunch. I could eat a wolf, and he added, "There are several present."

"Cannibalistic?" inquired Abby, surprised.

Approximately 300 Attend Ceremony At Gold Cliff

Girl Scout lodge at Gold Cliff park was formally dedicated Friday night with an attending audience of about 300 Girl Scouts, parents, and council members.

Following the flag ceremony and its pledge of allegiance led by Jacqueline Smith and the group singing of "God Bless America", Mrs. Bernard Young, commissioner of the Circleville and Pickaway Girl Scout association, gave a few words of welcome and appreciation for all those who have given of their time, money, and thought to make possible the building of the lodge. "Without the cooperation of all of you, this affair tonight would not have been possible," she said. "Through your efforts and the efforts of all who have given so generously, we not only have an active growing Girl Scout membership interested and working on all the phases of scouting for themselves and the community, but we have a headquarters, and now this wonderful lodge."

Mrs. Young paid tribute to Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Miller who gave the land, Chester Valentine who built the lodge itself and to Mr. and Mrs. Mack Noggle who were instrumental in obtaining the land itself and who worked and planned on the project until its completion.

Following brief responses from Chester Valentine, and Mr. and Mrs. Noggle, Scouts Sally Eshelman, Jacqueline Turner, and Marlene Steele presented Mr. and Mrs. Noggle with a gift of appreciation from the Girl Scouts and a scroll of names of those who gave it.

Retreat was sounded by Jean Heine assisted by Sue Brown, Nancy Eshelman, Norma Howard, Patsy Johnson.

Following this outdoor ceremony, the lodge itself was blessed with a choir of Girl Scouts, Intermediates and Brownies, with Jean Heine of Troop 1, first reader, Nancy Eshelman, Troop 1, second reader, Shirley Dunlap of Troop 3, third reader, Ruth Troutman, Troop 1, fourth reader, Jo Ellen Good, Troop 3, as a pirate, Carolyn Courtright of Troop 6 and Marilyn Bowers also of Troop 6 of Ashville as Indian and Viking, and Marlene Steele of Troop 2 as a Gypsy.

The ceremony was closed with the foxlease vespers by all the scouts and the guests were invited to inspect the lodge. Some of the features of it are a fully equipped kitchen cook corner with a cupboard containing dishes and utensils, attractive green and yellow curtains on the windows, the massive and beautiful fireplace and its ready cut wood, flowers over the mantle, old fashioned lanterns wired with electricity, tables and benches that also served as bleachers, book shelves in the side walls. Already many of the troops are looking forward to their first adventure in troop camping in such a place as this.

Formal opening and open house for the public will be held some time in October, the date as yet undecided.

Ushers for the dedication were Mary Ellen Rader, Ruth Stuver, Marilyn Radcliff, and Jacqueline Smith.

Peter's denial of Christ

"Thou shalt not bear false witness." — Exodus 20:16.

Jesus and Sincerity of Speech

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for Sept. 8 is Exodus 20:16; 23:1; Psalm 15:1-5; Proverbs 26:18-28; Matt. 5:33-37; 23:16-22; 26:69-75; Acts 4:13-21, 23, the Memory Verse being Exodus 20:16, "Thou shalt not bear false witness.")

Jesus reproached those who took God's name in vain, telling them that they should not excuse even mild profanity, but should refrain entirely from swearing. And he spoke of the men who swore hypocritically by the temple, or by the altar, thinking that was nothing, but considered an oath binding if it was sworn by the gold on the altar in the temple. These oaths were one and the same, he said, and blasphemous.

One of the saddest stories in the New Testament is the one of Peter's denial of Christ. It came after he had boasted strongly that no matter what happened to his Lord, he would stand by him. Jesus' judges, the priests, had found him guilty of blasphemy, and had spat on him and struck him. Then a maid saw Peter sitting with others around a fire in the great hall, and she said, "Thou also wast with Jesus of Galilee," but he denied it, saying, "I know not what thou sayest."

These two quotations from Exodus set the theme for today's lesson, and we will see what is it that makes people most angry? What is the usual cause of childish quarrels when these small people will not talk to each other? Isn't it that some one bore false witness—slandered them behind their backs, said mean things about them?

Denies Jesus With Curses

After awhile, a third person said to Peter, "Surely thou also art one of them; for they speech bewrayeth thee." Then Peter began to curse and swear, saying, "I know not the man." And immediately the cock crew, and Peter remembered what Jesus had said the night before that he would deny him thrice and "he went out and wept bitterly."

Possibly a year or so later Peter and John healed a lame man in the name of Jesus, the risen Christ. Many people saw the miracle and the priests arrested and put them in prison until the next day, when they were brought before the Sanhedrin, the same body that had condemned their Master. These judges saw that the men were not cultivated persons, but were rough looking and uneducated, so they evidently thought if they forbade them to heal any more or to preach, they would be intimidated and cease.

But Peter and John answered and said unto them, "Whether it be right in the sight of God to hearken unto you more than unto God, judge ye. For we cannot but speak the things which we have seen and heard."

So when they had further treated them they let them go, because they didn't dare punish them as the people were with them and had seen the miracle, and glorified God.

"And being let go, they went to their own company, and reported all that the chief priests and elders had said unto them." Peter had learned his lesson. He was no longer afraid. Thereafter he spoke the truth, no matter what it cost him.

Words, words—what a power lies in them, for good or ill. The dreadful part of it is that words once spoken can never be recalled. We may be oh, so sorry for what we have said, but they are said and nothing can change that. Watch your lips that they say only that which is good about thy neighbor. Then there is no remorse. Those who claim to be followers of Jesus surely should be most careful to speak as He would have us, with truth and sincerity, never with scorn, hatred and malice.

Girl Scout Lodge Is Formally Dedicated

Approximately 300 Attend Ceremony At Gold Cliff

Girl Scout lodge at Gold Cliff park was formally dedicated Friday night with an attending audience of about 300 Girl Scouts, parents, and council members.

Following the flag ceremony and its pledge of allegiance led by Jacqueline Smith and the group singing of "God Bless America", Mrs. Bernard Young, commissioner of the Circleville and Pickaway Girl Scout association, gave a few words of welcome and appreciation for all those who have given of their time, money, and thought to make possible the building of the lodge. "Without the cooperation of all of you, this affair tonight would not have been possible", she said. "Through your efforts and the efforts of all who have given so generously, we not only have an active living Girl Scout membership interested and working on all the phases of scouting for themselves and the community, but we have a headquarters, and now this wonderful lodge."

Mrs. Young paid tribute to Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Miller who gave the land, Chester Valentine who built the lodge itself and to Mr. and Mrs. Mack Noggle who were instrumental in obtaining the land itself and who worked and planned on the project until its completion.

Following brief responses from Chester Valentine, and Mr. and Mrs. Noggle, Scouts Sally Eshelman, Jacqueline Turner, and Marlene Steele presented Mr. and Mrs. Noggle with a gift of appreciation from the Girl Scouts and a scroll of names of those who gave it.

Retreat was sounded by Jean Heine assisted by Sue Brown, Nancy Eshelman, Norma Howard, Eatsy Johnson.

Following this outdoor ceremony, the lodge itself was blessed with a choir of Girl Scouts, Intermediates and Brownies, with Jean Heine of Troop 1, first reader, Nancy Eshelman, Troop 1, second reader, Shirley Dunlap of Troop 8, third reader, Ruth Troutman, Troop 1, fourth reader, Jo Ellen Good, Troop 3, as a pirate, Carolyn Courtright of Troop 6 and Marilyn Bowers also of Troop 6 of Ashville as Indian and Viking, and Marlene Steele of Troop 2 as a Gypsy.

The ceremony was closed with the foxlease vespers by all the scouts and the guests were invited to inspect the lodge. Some of the features of it are a fully equipped kitchen cook corner with a cupboard containing dishes and utensils, attractive green and yellow curtains on the windows, the massive and beautiful fireplace and its ready cut wood, flowers over the mantle, old fashioned lanterns wired with electricity, tables and benches that also served as bleachers, book shelves in the side walls. Peter's denial of Christ

"Thou shalt not bear false witness." — Exodus 20:16.

Jesus and Sincerity of Speech

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for Sept. 8 is Exodus 20:16; 23:1; Psalm 15:1-5; Proverbs 26:18-28; Matt. 5:33-37; 23:16-22; 26:69-75; Acts 4:13-21, 23, the Memory Verse being Exodus 20:16; "Thou shalt not bear false witness."

"THOU SHALT not bear false witness against thy neighbor." And again, "Thou shalt not raise a false report: put not thine hand with the wicked to be an unrighteous witness."

These two quotations from Exodus set the theme for today's lesson, and we will see what Jesus had to say about it. What is it that makes people most angry? What is the usual cause of childish quarrels when these small people will not talk to each other? Isn't it that some one bore false witness—slandered them behind their backs, said mean things about them?

Insinuosity, as we pronounce the word, does not sound like a very heinous sin, but think of the woe it has brought the world. Almost every tyrant who has brought death and terror to millions has posed as a benefactor, bringing blessings in his wake, when he was really an unmitigated evil, bent only on working out his own dreadful, selfish ends.

"Lord, who shall abide in Thy tabernacle?" who shall dwell in Thy holy hill?" asks the Psalmist.

He that walketh uprightly, and speaketh the truth in his heart. He that backbiteth not with his tongue, nor doth evil to his neighbor, nor taketh up a reproach against his neighbor. In whose eyes a vile person is contended: but he honoreth them that fear the Lord. He that sweareth to his own heart, and changeth not. He that putteth not out his money to usury, nor taketh reward against the innocent. He that doeth these things shall never be removed."

Deceiver Is Like Mad Man

In Proverbs we read these strong words, "As a mad man who casteth firebrands, arrows, and death, so is the man that deceiveth his neighbor... Where no wood is, there the fire goeth out; so where there is no tale-bearer, the strife ceaseth."

Words, words—what a power lies in them, for good or ill. The dreadful part of it is that words once spoken can never be recalled.

We may be oh, so sorry for what we have said, but they are said and nothing can change that.

Watch your lips that they say only that which is good about thy neighbor. Then there is no remorse. Those who claim to be followers of Jesus surely should be most careful to speak as He would have us, with truth and sincerity, never with scorn, hatred and malice.

NEWS Behind the NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

to "convert Japan into a base for pernicious enterprises". On its face this kind of stuff is getting below the ten year age intelligent limit, but General MacArthur simultaneously warned us that the Japanese were accustomed to a dictatorship and might go for a Communist dictatorship unless we are careful.

These truths are not evident to a casual reader of the news, and most of our people are casual readers, and indeed many finer points may not be evident to a closer reader sometimes. They are not unusual circumstances, but daily occurrences. If the Soviet peoples are being wholly misled by exclusive government propaganda, an untold number of our people are being warped by partial propaganda. As such tactics are apparently to continue indefinitely, something should be done.

Press associations should look on all news from Moscow, not as news, for it is never nonpolitical in nature, but as propaganda, and should go to the state department for a follow which sets the facts straight, or to some other authority. A news reader should not be left up in the air on Russian propaganda without a chance to get the facts at the very moment he reads the propaganda—not later. This is a defect in our armor.

There should, furthermore, be a congressional committee of sufficient standing to detect and expose propaganda. It should sit at the time, as a haven to which any citizen can go to ask whether a certain organization has Communist leanings, or to get the available evidence concerning current propaganda. This agency should serve, not counter-propaganda, but established factual truths which are legal evidence.

The strongest element of democracy is that it is truly a defense in depth. It is a collection of independent minds which cannot be conquered by propaganda. Officialdom at the top may or may not be deluded for a time. Magazines or newspapers may be misled. But certainly an entire nation cannot be deluded as long as independence of thought is maintained in truly democratic spirit. This is the essential weakness of Russia, which will ruin Communism. As Brooks Atkinson tells it: "all normal communication being cut off with the outside world, the intellectual climate (of Russia) is stagnant. Behind the iron curtain of censorship, the national reaction to rumors and also to facts are neurotic... In an abnormal climate of this kind, group aberrations flourish", the most conspicuous and irritating abnormality in Soviet leadership being "a group paranoia".

Thus we have a problem and we must find the methods to handle it with truth and freedom, as we handle minor abnormalities or group paranoia in this country.

Opinions expressed by the writer in this column are the views of the author and not necessarily those of the Circleville Herald.

One-Minute Test

1. What was the "field of the cloth of gold"?
2. Who wrote the "King of the Golden River"?
3. In what country is the Black Forest?

Words of Wisdom

The first and simplest emotion which we discover in the human mind, is curiosity.—Burke.

Today's Horoscope
You have great executive ability, are authoritative, determined, persevering, and self-reliant. You should go far in your chosen field. You enjoy reading good books, and like to travel. You have high aims and ideals, and have the respect and esteem of your friends and associates. Discard any financial propositions made today. Brilliant letters can come from your pen, so write. Disregard the approaches of a stranger. The moon enters Aquarius at 12:38 p. m. Social dates may wind up unpleasantly, so stay at home. Conflicting desires in the home may lead to strife, so be cautious.

Hints on Etiquette
In addressing a letter to a man who uses Jr. after his name, use both "Mr." and "Jr." in addressing the letter.

Horoscope for Sunday

You are artistic and musical, if you have a birthday today; you have positive ideas and like having your own way. You are discriminating and shrewd, a good student, deep thinker, and an interesting talker. You are loving, faithful and devoted to your family, and will (or did) probably fall in love at first sight. Today unusual thoughts or dreams may prove startling. Try to relax in spite of disturbances. A more peaceful atmosphere and quiet influence will soon prevail, so be at ease.

One-Minute Test Answers

1. The meeting place of Henry VIII of England and Francis I of France.
2. John Ruskin.
3. It is a mountainous wooded region in Wurttemberg, Germany.

NBC, Anne Baxter, popular screen star, will be their guest. Anita Gordon, vocalist and Ray Noble and his orchestra will join in the fun.

TOMMY DORSEY SHOW
Woody Herman, virtuoso of the clarinet and alto saxophone, will be the guest of Tommy Dorsey, Sunday, at 8:30 P. M. (EST).

VANISHING INDIAN
When a titled English lady possessing a valuable ruby is murdered on an ocean liner, "Nick Carter, Master Detective" is called upon to find a shrewd killer and the missing stone Sunday, (5:30-6 p. m., EST) over Mutual.

Six 4-H Club Members of County To Attend Club Congress

THREE ADVISORS
TO ACCOMPANY
YOUTHS ON TRIP

Outstanding 4-H Members To Participate In Program
At Ohio State

Six 4-H club members and three advisors will attend the 29th annual Ohio 4-H Club Congress on the Ohio State University campus, Sunday through Thursday.

Pickaway county's delegates are: Lucile Neal, Margaret Anderson, Jean Campbell, William Speakman, William Courtright and Dwight Rector, Jr. Advisors who will attend the Congress are: Faye Dowler, Walter Bungarner, Jr. and Mrs. Orville Shannon.

Expenses for delegates and advisors, with the exception of Mrs. Shannon, will be paid by Container Corporation of America, Circleville, Ohio. Mrs. Shannon's expenses will be paid by Ohio State Junior Fair.

Lucille Neal is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. V. Neal of Orient, route 1. She has been in club work eight years and has completed 19 projects in foods, clothing and livestock. At the present time, she is a member of the Darby Flying Needles, with Mrs. Orville Shannon as advisor and also a member of the Fine and Dandy Livestock Club, which her father leads.

Lucille has served as counselor at 4-H club camp and is very prominent in musical affairs both at camp and in school. She is secretary of the Fine and Dandy Club and of the Pickaway County Older Rural Youth Group. At this year's Ohio State Fair, she was winner of the girl's individual demonstration contest. During planting and harvest season, she operates a tractor on the Neal farm.

Margaret Anderson's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Shirley Anderson of Mt. Sterling route 3. She has been in club work six years and has completed eight projects in foods, clothing and livestock, making her program a well rounded one. This year she is secretary for the Junior Farmers of Monroe, which is led by Charles Hesler and is vice president of the Monroe S.S. Club with Mrs. Harley Brigner and Mrs. Turney Sheets as advisors. Margaret is an active member in church, Sunday school, grange and school affairs. She participated in a county demonstration contest recently, representing her club as member of a team demonstration. She is a senior at Monroe township school.

Jean Campbell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Campbell of Williamsport route 2, has completed nine projects in clothing and livestock during the last six years. Jean and her two sisters belong to the Wayne Willing Workers, a sewing group advised by Mrs. Walter Downing and Mrs. J. B. Stevenson, and the Westfall 4-H Victory Club, advised by George Mallett. Jean competed in the State 4-H club style revue at Ohio State Fair in the dress up dress division with her brown and white jersey formal. She is a senior at Circleville high school where she has an enviable record in scholarship tests. Her work in demonstrations and on club committees has been of high quality.

Faye Dowler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Dowler of Ashville route 1, is a member and also advisor of the Ashville Flying Needles. She has been very active as a 4-H club camp counselor. Faye will return to her studies at Ohio State University this Fall.

Mrs. Orville Shannon, advisor of the Darby Flying Needles, attends this year's 4-H Club Congress under the sponsorship of the Ohio State Junior Fair as a result of having been advisor for Lucille Neal, the individual demonstrator who won the state contest.

William Courtright has completed 16 projects in eight years of club work. He is a member of the Duvall-Go-Getters club. Billy, as he is generally called, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Courtright of Ashville.

Billy is entering Ohio State University this Fall in pre-veterinary school. Camp counselor, assistant 4-H swine superintendent at Ohio State Junior Fair, church choir, secretary of Sunday School, member of grange and member of Older Rural Youth Group are some of the well rounded activities of this prominent young man.

Billy Speakman has been in 4-H club work for nine years during which time he completed 19 projects. He was graduated from Ashville high school and was valedictorian of his class. During his school career, he was prominent in sports. Billy has had a well balanced program of activities which included school band, orchestra, scholarship team, president of senior class, athletic director at senior 4-H camp this past year, master of juvenile grange, and has been active in church as well as Rural Youth activities. Billy is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry C. Speakman of Ashville. Enrollment at Ohio State University is complete.

ASHVILLE

Woman's Civic Club held its first meeting of the Fall season Thursday evening in the club room with 17 members present. Mrs. Roland Fetheringham, the club president, conducted the business session and the secretary's and the treasurer's reports were given by Mrs. Lowell Cooper and Mrs. William S. Fischer.

The roll call was answered by each member donating a tea towel which will be given to the high school Home Economics department. It was decided to place small containers in each business place in Ashville for the collection of sales tax stamps.

New programs for the year were presented to the members, the topic for the year being "Post War Living."

A very interesting paper "Post War Household Appliances" was read by Mrs. Raymond Lindsey to complete the evening's program.

William Wright, a former Ashville High student, is now doing clerical work at the Bremenhaven staging area at Bremen, Germany from which service men depart in returning to the States. Recent
